DEAR UNCLE DAVIS

Last year, Brian Johnson found out that he had come into a big fortune after his uncle Davis had passed away. His uncle had been a heavy smoker for many years and hadn't been able to cut down on his smoking. Brian got on well with his uncle Davis, and often went to see him. One summer, Uncle Davis promised to smoke less because it took him three months to get over an extremely bad cough. Brian had looked after him those three months and, a number of times he had told Uncle Davis off. He came up with a brilliant idea to stop his nasty habit. He contacted the Local Cancer Society. As agreed, they phoned Brian, he told them to hold on and then put his uncle Davis through. They explained that they were looking for a volunteer to help the patients. That frightened Uncle Davis, and he swore to give up smoking. In fact, Uncle Davis even took up jogging and swimming in order to help him feel better.
